Does either of you have the product that you can use with a PC.Q: SQL Server Exec() error I have a Sql Query like this exec('select code, desc from table', 't1'); But I am getting an error like this Msg 156, Level 15, State 1, Line 1 Incorrect syntax near the keyword'select'. My problem is I need to use the select query for selecting values from code and desc, but I have column names as code and desc. So how can I resolve this error? A: you need to change the query to exec('select code, desc from table') or exec('select * from table') A: You're trying to execute a select statement, not an insert or update or similar. You need to change the query to either select * (assuming you want to select all columns) or select from... Also: You don't need the single quotes exec() requires a command string, not a query string I am so excited to share this news with you!
